DESIGNS BY JIESE

Hand Crafted - One Of A Kind

I've been captivated by the allure of both rocks and jewelry from an early age, a passion instilled in me by my father, a masterful teacher. Today, I carry on his legacy by meticulously cutting stones with his cherished rock saw and honing them to perfection with his trusty grinder, both heirlooms I proudly inherited. My fascination with jewelry extends beyond mere adornment; it's a lifelong pursuit of craftsmanship and artistry. Whenever a piece broke, I saw it not as a setback but as an opportunity for restoration and growth. Now, I've embraced the challenge of creating jewelry with boundless enthusiasm, finding profound joy in every facet of the process. For me, the journey of jewelry-making is an ongoing odyssey of discovery and refinement. I am continually learning, refining my skills, and expanding my artistic horizons. It is my sincere hope that you derive as much pleasure from my creations as I do from crafting them, and that

Certified USDA Organic Hemp Farm We are one of the first hemp license holders in the state of Oregon. We have been growing hemp since 2015. We love to stress how fortunate we are that hemp is legal here in Oregon. Every year the rules and regulations are changing and becoming harder to grow and produce this incredible plant. We feel honored that we can provide so many benefits from Hemp and CBD. We cannot take it for granted that we have a right to grow, use and sell hemp. There are many pressures that want to eliminate the hemp and CBD market. Sustainable Hemp Our family returned to Oregon after more than twenty years of organic farming in California. We chose the name Whole Circle Farms because we believe that everything is connected: from the microbes in the soil to the purity of the water, the clean air, and the feeding patterns of the insects. We tend to each part of that circle to create something even more extraordinary than the sum of its parts. Our high standard of farming has allowed us to become one of a handful of hemp farms with organic

Hey there, I'm a Willamette Valley native who loves Farming, Animals, My Family, and Helping Others become more successful. There are two ways that I am able to accomplish this. The first is farming 100 acres of Hazelnuts (Or Filberts, if you know what I mean) with my In-Laws just north of Salem. The second is being the go-to resource for local businesses on all things related to accepting payments and expanding the services they offer to clients through Swipe Pay.

And while some people work because they have to, I get the privilege of working because I love too. Whether it is seeing my orchards grow another year, or seeing a client of mine continue expanding their business, I enjoy seeing success grow. So if you (or someone you know) has a question about the payment processing space, now you can tell them...

"Hey, I Noah guy!" ;)

Meet the Director:

Sarah Mutinelli was lucky to grow up in a musical household. The daughter of an opera singer and a trumpet player, she spent countless hours watching music rehearsals, performances, and listening to her parents practice their instruments.

Her first job was Christmas caroling with her mom's Young Singers Club program. She loved her high school musical theater program and singing with the jazz choir under the direction of esteemed musician and mentor Ike Jenkins. Through choir she won several solo awards at jazz festivals including Reno and North Texas State and toured Europe in the summer of 2003.

Sarah earned a Bachelor of Music at Cornish College of the Arts in Seattle where she studied with Grammy Award winning composer Jovino Santos Neto, jazz trombone legend Julian Priester, and many other world class musicians.

Exploring the World, One Adventure at a Time

For most people, embarking on a 12-week journey through 14 countries sounds like a dream—or maybe a bit of a crazy idea! But for me, Amy “Sunny” Beebe, passionate traveler, homeschooling mom, and travel advisor with Cruise Planners, it was the adventure of a lifetime. With my three daughters and husband by my side, I set out to create unforgettable memories while diving deep into Europe’s cultures, history, and landscapes. Now, I’m excited to bring my experiences and expertise to help others discover the world on their own terms.

As a family, we’re no strangers to travel. From cross-country U.S. trips to Disney adventures, travel planning has been my role since before the girls were born, and each journey brings its own mix of challenges and rewards. But our recent three-month European expedition required more planning than ever before. We explored 14 countries, from the castles of Scotland to the sunny beaches of Spain and the ancient ruins of Greece. Each day was an opportunity to experience life outside our own small-town bubble, with every destination adding something unique to our understanding of the world, its history, and how other people live. During this trip, I handled every detail—transportation, lodging, tours, health advisories, and even the unexpected challenges of navigating border crossings in a post-COVID world. With over 20 stops across Europe, I ensured everything ran smoothly so we could focus on exploring. My daughters saw the world as their classroom, learning about different cultures, languages, and ways of life—an invaluable experience for any homeschooling family. What did we learn? For starters, Paprika chips, Milka bars, strawberry juice, real Greek yogurt, and cheap parmesan reggiano will be greatly missed. We learned the Romans were everywhere, kebab is Europe’s go-to street food, and high-speed rail systems are a marvel. We embraced Europe’s acceptance of kids being given the freedom to wield axes at parks and admired the independence of young children navigating public transport in Scandinavia. We cataloged all of the different ways countries organize grocery stores and watched in awe at how language is no barrier to little kids building sand castles together or picking up a game of futbol in the street at dinner. And we discovered that Oregon is best described as “the state above California,” which became a fun conversation starter!

Whether it’s a weekend getaway or an epic adventure, I’m here to handle the details so you can soak up the experience. Travel is forever! Travel everywhere you want to bee...be with Amy “Sunny” Beebe
